

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. I do not care to hear Sinclair's opinion of who they want us to vote for.

I believe I have already seen this 'documentary'. I think the man they have whining about what Kerry said/did when he 'came home' needs to take a step back and realize what was 'done' was WRONG. To torture innocents, to raise villages, to rape and murder is WRONG, whether it is done in the name of war or just plain old personal EVIL. Which do you think is worse? Committing atrocities or telling about them being committed? This shows why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
